The value for src attribute on each of these elements shall be a path to your JSP file. The tag contains the id of the checkbox to be displayed as a list item. All checkboxes in this list must have a different value attribute. The contains id, name and value of each row. In the value section of each row, an attribute data-module-path must be set. This attribute point to the name of the JavaScript file associated with the JSP to load to the page. In our case, it's the js-module-checkbox-list. The file checkboxes-list.jsp points to a file that contains the JavaScript code to generate the list. The elements element make sure to put a word that highlights the checkboxes. The element has a method="post" attribute, set to true, to indicate the submit method. It also has action="#{bean.findAll}" attribute, which refers to the method that will be called on the server to render the page. tags. If you're having trouble displaying checkboxes, it's likely that there are either errors in the code

The software utility doesn't require installation or any DLL files to run. It can be saved anywhere on the disk or on a removable storage unit to launch it on any computer and gain LocalSystem rights. However, you should keep mind mind that you need administrative privileges to use it. Portable app which requires admin rights Evaluation and conclusion It worked smoothly in our tests, without hanging, crashing or prompting error dialogs. To sum it up, Elevate To System is a feather-light and simple-to-use, yet powerful application that grants you LocalSystem account access to any Windows file. A key point that must be kept in mind with this utility is that you shouldn't use the correct path to launch the program, since the program doesn't remember it.Nigerian émigrés living in London have expressed anxiety over the unprecedented lockdowns implemented by the government in the Nigerian community in the city, holding the Nigerian government responsible for the failure of several local businesses. Musa Fakorede, a Nigerian living in London for 10 years, whose business never recovered following the 2003 invasion of the country, told Reset that even though they registered their businesses, the British Nigerian Business Association (BNBA) has refused to raise their hands, saying they were not qualified to register. "This has a lot to do with the sheer fact that there was no government in Nigeria that valued businesses. We didn't know how government operated. And there was no NAPRA (the Nigerian Capital Port Authority) back then, so we didn't know how we were going to operate under the government," he said. "We also knew that we were under so much stress because what was happening in Nigeria was going to be shared with us. There was no way of knowing what to expect. So, we never registered." Mr. Fakorede who lives in the London borough of Ealing, lamented that time has come for the government to support its economy as his company has not been given the green light to register. "They (BNBA) have got to respect what they did – they took money from people that was meant for themselves. They have got to show how things are going to support their economy. "They are not showing us how things are going to sustain the country. If they (BNBA) want to support business, then they have to tell us how they
