Geelong airport driving instructor romped by Indonesian girl A Geelong airport driving instructor has been hit with an indecent assault charge after allegedly romping with a young Indonesian girl, who has been unable to come to Australia to visit her mother. The father of the girl will be charged with his daughter's age and released on bail for two weeks. It is understood a 27-year-old girl met on a bus at Geelong's Monash Stadium last week. They then made their way to a nearby hotel, where the Geelong driving instructor spent the night. It is believed the young woman left the hotel alone to catch a bus home. It is understood she and her father, from Indonesia, have been unable to come to Australia to see her ailing mother. Police allege a sexual relationship began and continued while the girl was a passenger in the driver's seat of the Geelong man's vehicle for three weeks. The Geelong man was released on bail on Monday night and his case was in the hands of the Geelong Magistrates Court.Q: Can Database indexes be grouped by column? My table in MySQL has a unique ID associated with a bunch of other things. I want to be able to query by ID and only return the other stuff. I've started building an index on ID but as you might imagine that gets things for a long time. My thinking was that I could build an index on ID and Name and query by either name or ID and not have to worry about the uniqueness of names. My question is, can indexes be grouped by columns? If not, what's the point of adding indexes? A: The fact that you have a unique constraint in your table is the most important reason why
