I didnt know what to do. And thats exactly how I feel about this game. Now, I know how silly this sounds, but this game isnt that kind of game. In my mind, it was a completely different sort of game. I played through like a 1000 times, in my head, imagining all kinds of weird situations. It was like being a kid again, when I first played Myst. You dont know what to do or where to go, you just start off and believe you can learn as you go. But if theres no end goal, why bother? Sure, in some of the puzzles its like youve been down this path before, but its not the same. Youre trying to solve one of its little puzzles in a different order than you usually do. That seems so wrong! But its fun. Theres no right or wrong way to play this. But theres the one true way, and thats what makes this game so special. If you dont know what its doing, youre not supposed to, or at least shouldnt have to. Why should I win? How can I even win? I have so many questions, and there arent any answers. Theres no winning or losing. Now, I know what you're thinking. Why shouldn't you have a winning or losing? Who says I'm supposed to have any sort of meaning. Everything in this game is meant to be a symbol. I know I'm describing a game, and even if that's true, there's meaning in symbols all the time. So why can't there be meaning in this one? "Stephen's Sausage Roll" Is its Own Puzzle Game And its such a perfect, beautiful puzzle game, its hard to explain why you should even care. This is a game about solving a series of unexpected and complicated puzzles with seemingly no real reason behind any of them, instead they're just weird little slices of the puzzle-space. The puzzle doesn't tell you what's in it, or why it works, only what it does. You have to figure that out. I don't even know if its supposed to tell you what's in this thing. It didn't tell me. But I don't care. It gave me what I needed, and I needed it. Its more than a game, its a puzzle object with a story. "Stephen's Sausage Roll" Is In a Way Elegiac Thats not only my opinion. Its a poem. There are other versions of this game for other people, and they

Cross your fingers this drop is a Rocket Skates. Level 1: Rift Storm, Level 2: Teleport, Level 3: Flight Each Lvl 1 or 2 has the cost of all 3 better overall. This set is BIS. 8x Pepperoni Slices 5x Spicy Dogs 1x Moonshroom Noise Surroundings (£120) Plague Ghoul & Spooky Witch Witch's Blade is BIS. Recruits are a bit overpowered against (Tiny) Plague Zombies, but still a decent deal if you don't need to kill them fast. Pretty sure their drop rate is the same as Plague Zombies, I doubt this pack will be viable for any time soon due to the abundance of Plague Zombies. Plague Zombie Demented Actor (£40) 3x Beefsteak Tomato Chimeriot Altar (£40) 6x Pepperoni Slices Von Bonham (Silverback) (£30) Level 1: Thermal Gust, Level 2: Blackhole, Level 3: Avalanche This is a fantastic pack, and one of the most unique packs you can run.
