Download EmailAlert Portable Hello everyone, and welcome to another post about freeware. We've got ourselves another utility to recommend for your operating system called PictureNote. It enables you to create personalized notes on pictures (JPG files) that are stored on your hard drive. It's about time to be honest - there are a ton of programs that claim to feature a similar function and while we were really eager to test them out, we were all left disappointed once we installed them and saw no (or extremely limited) utility behind it. Existing functions When you open PictureNote, you can browse your folders and subfolders for pictures, select a file and then mark your photos. It is also possible to tag your photos by using keywords and then set the corresponding notes (you can add multiple notes at once). Aside from that, the app provides you with a set of random notes, images, videos, audio, macros, lock screen background and all of these categories can be expanded. You will also be able to filter your notes by category as well as select those which have been already created. App interface While you are working in the app, you get to choose the date and time for each new note. You can mark up a picture with comments, images, title, tags, reminders and so forth, click on "Add new note" and then on "Save". All of the data is saved to either your personal or shared documents. You can also retrieve them and view the notes using a Windows Explorer window.

Conclusion We were quite surprised that we could create personalized notes based on photos, as there is a slightly long time necessary in order to create them and we were looking for a program that would give you all of this for free. This tool certainly does, and while it is not the first one to feature the function, it still gives a good hand for the resourcefulness of the developers. PictureNote Portable Description: PictureNote is an image viewer that lets you view JPG and TIF files which are stored in your local folders or on the network
