“This technology allows us to collect, process, evaluate, and use all the data in the game in real time during a live match,” said Ian Davies, Senior AI Engineer at EA Sports. “Using this technology, players can learn how the match evolved over the course of play, see their own performance, and apply simulated counter-pressure to make a match-changing decision in real time.” The feature was showcased during an exclusive EA SPORTS FIFA 17 Inside Pitch event on September 12. The event also featured several gameplay demonstrations from players from the U.S., England, France, Spain, Germany, Sweden and Italy that showcase the enhanced gameplay the new technology enables. Download Free Game When the game is first played, the player will be faced with a database of a number of real-world player data sets. The player will use the joystick to play a free-kick using their normal speed and style, and the player can test their decision making and play free-kicks in pre-determined conditions. During the match, the player's unique reactions, characteristics, and decision making will be applied to the match. For example, players that use their head as a shield to block a header will react differently than players that head-butt the ball, and FIFA can capture this data. Exclusive events and Championships In addition to all of the aforementioned enhancements, EA SPORTS FIFA Championship Mode added 12 new full-team tournaments, including the Women’s World Cup™, European Championship, Champions League, and FIFA Club World Cup, making it the most comprehensive mode yet. The addition of these tournaments featuring hundreds of real-world players, real-

Q: Plotting multi-dimensional data in gnuplot I am plotting multiple datasets with gnuplot. All the datasets look like :
x_1 y_1 x_2 y_2 x_3 y_3 101 100 101 101 0 0 102 102 100 102 0 0 103 103 103 103 1 0 105 105 0 0 0 0 106 104 0 0 0 0 I want to plot the first dataset (x_1 y_1, x_2 y_2 and x_3 y_3) in color 1, and plot the others with the same color but with the values of 0 for the x and y axis. I tried the following command: plot 'ascii_1' using 3:1:2 with lines lc rgb "red" lw 3 lt 1 title 'Data 1' to plot it in red.

It does not work. What am I doing wrong here? A: Gnuplot's syntax is a little bit weird. You basically just use : to determine the number of values to use as an index when using lc rgb. You then use :3 to determine how many of those values you want to use to color the values in a line. It's a little bit confusing at first but all good. So try this: plot 'ascii_1' using 1:(3*$4):2 with lines lc rgb "red" lw 3 lt 1 title 'Data 1' This will plot 3 horizontal lines, each with a red color and width of 3. {
