Maze Madness is a FPS Maze Running Game. There is no cover mechanic, each NPC you run into will attack you, with the possible of a bow or M4 Where each level of the game is a real outdoor maze, with day or night time levels. There are several mazes per level, each maze has it's own different obstacle's and puzzles, making it harder to reach your goal, the time is different for each maze. You have to get through the maze using the arrow keys, press the space bar to shoot and release the space bar to hide. Selecting help you can temporarily overcome some obstacles, but there is no permanent help and you can only do what is available right now, on the current level. And when you go back in at a later time, you will have to start your time over again. The first three levels are easy, so they don't give you a hard time, but the later levels have increasingly more complex puzzles and obstacles. You start off with a bow, which is really easy to use, but not as effective as the M4. Your goal is to get through the maze, while looking for the best time possible. The In game music changes as the levels progress, the opening maze uses the music from the Zelda games, but the later mazes use the music from the Grand Theft Auto games. The sounds of the weapons fire are real, it is not the editing sounds that are being recorded. Killed Enemies If you kill an NPC it leaves a trail of blood and sometimes body parts behind, the blood bleeds and puts off a visual effect, that can be seen in the distance. In addition the NPC's body parts drop something that gives you a small amount of health and ammo, and if it is a head it gives you a small amount of money. More enemy's will drop more money and health. You start with 25 health and 5 bullets. Walk to an NPC If you walk to an NPC, it will reveal itself. There are no NPC's in the canyons yet. Press Spacebar If you press the spacebar you will have a chance of shooting an enemy. If you shoot and miss, you will run but not get hit. Spacebar and Press c9d1549cdd

5/5 Storyline: 4/5 Graphics: 5/5 Sound/Music: 5/5 Additional Comments: Yes, I am biased, but what can I say? When this game first came out, I remember looking forward to it's release for months. Me, being the open minded gamer I am, jumped on it's release day and loved every minute of it! Yes, this game will not be for everyone, but if you enjoy what I feel is the fundamental game play style of GOD OF WAR, then this game will be right up your alley. For the first time in a while, "gods" can be played who are friends of the player as the game play style allows many different outcomes when taking a life. While you only get 1 life, you can make it a very difficult one at that. You start with a very weak weapon (pistol), a low defense (45), a very slow roll speed (which is changed by the technosphere), but very powerful alien weapons at higher skill levels. Yes, the ending is very predictable, and yes it's a bit short, but this game's length is an improvement over games that is typical. This game has atmosphere, there are no over the top moments like games like "BESTIARY". It is more of a nice break from the serious games and on the fence games of today. That being said, the game can be very difficult and there are a few times I just wanted to quit, but the good thing is that one could play this game for hours and not get sick of it. If you are looking for something different and a great game to play for hours, look no further than TECHNOSPHERE RELOAD! yes, I am biased, but what can I say? _ | 4.5-7.0 _Mars Project_ | 1.6 _I Love Lucy_ | 1.4 Average. For "intelligent discourse," we averaged the three longest intermission months at _The Godfather_. ## The Films I Didn't Have Time to See Here's the thing about the films I haven't had the chance to see: they had the advantage of being, for the most part, available in theaters where I could have had the honor of seeing them. Nonetheless, I still took the inoffensive chance of avoiding them, mostly in months with lots of unседated work in the way of mixing and mastering. A few of the missing films were just that important I couldn't resist and so can't stay on record as "unsought." _Bridge on the River Kwai_ | 2.3 _Cat on a Hot Tin Roof_ | 5.4 _Dillinger_ | 1.2 _Easy Rider_ | 1.1 _Extremities_ | 1.0 _The Fool_ | 0.2 _From Here to Eternity_ | 0.8 _Grease_ | 1.6 _Herbie Goes Bananas_ | 2.1 _Magnum Force_ | 0.3 _Mr. Lucky_ | 0.5 _On Approval_ | 0.8 _On Her Majesty's Secret Service_ | 0.4

Paris in Spring | 0.2 _Sebastian_ | 2.2 _Targets_ | 1.0 _The Wild Bunch_ | 3.4 _Who'll Stop the Rain?_ | 1.3 Probably. For "intelligent discourse," we averaged the three longest months in which I could have seen them. ## Worst Month of Film Viewing: April 1990 September, November, and January are already locked in the win column—I had them covered before them, in my worst month of viewing, in April 1990. After dedicating myself to finding out what was going on during that situation, I came to the sad conclusion that I was just too ill-equipped at the time to grapple with the intricacies of the eight-millimeter aspects of the shoot. The month
