On the game, the green frog, as big as his thumb, is trying to hug him. Sitting in the office's green lounge, the white walls decorated with bright flowers and figurines of fairytale animals, Mr Ngosadi is free to exchange his Inuktitut, his mother tongue, with the office staff, all of whom are Indonesian. The centre, which is funded by the local municipality, receives no state support but operates at reduced cost. It is the only nursery in Biru, a small, conservative town in
