(AP Photo/Evan Vucci, File) OTTAWA (AP) — President Donald Trump and Canadian Prime Minister Justin Trudeau on Friday have only a positive, friendly relationship, but U.S. media reports that they've talked trade for months have made the already icy bilateral relationship between the U.S. and Canada worse. In remarks to reporters ahead of a Group of Seven leaders' meeting in Quebec, Trudeau said the Liberal government wouldn't succumb to Trump's pressure.

"We will not be pushed around by the U.S. on trade," he said. ADVERTISEMENT It's not clear how the trade fight between the two countries will impact the G-7 meeting. China and the U.S., two of the six countries represented in the gathering, have also had a difficult relationship for months. Trump has made a habit of using Canadian leaders to demonstrate the warmth of his personal relationship with his American counterpart and they've previously shared a number of laughs. Trudeau also said he'd had a good laugh over Trump's "Walther PPK" quip at a meeting earlier this month.
