Q: Cannot upload photo to Facebook using ASP.NET Web API I have been working with the Facebook Graph Api for about a week and a half now. I have a working Facebook application at hand, and I am able to get my Facebook ID and username etc. and can login to the app etc. Now I am trying to send a post request from a ASP.NET Web API application and it is resulting in an BadAuthentication Error. I am testing the POST request from Postman (so is working) and it gives me a Authentication Error. Facebook C# SDK samples are working fine, except that when sending a photo to Facebook, I get the following error: I have read over the Facebook documentation on the BadAuthentication error a couple of times, but I do not think I do anything differently than they do. A: You'll have to create a registered app on Facebook Developer before you can send to it. As you may know, a short period of time, your app must have been reviewed by Facebook. If this app has been reviewed, you may receive this error. Your app needs to be approved by Facebook before you can start working on it. Here is your official documentation about the process: Abstract: Advanced communication devices will cost less, be smaller, and consume less power, as transistors will continue to shrink to enable the reduction of power consumption. However, these trends will slow the improvements in device performance and have the potential for a penalty. This project aims to provide insight into the mechanism of the performance penalty at the microscopic level. The project involves a series of measurements of the characteristics of graphene devices to evaluate the performance as a function of the incident wave at the microscopic level. By evaluating the performance at different frequencies, it will be possible to see whether the slow mobility due to the performance penalty is frequency dependent or whether the source of the performance penalty
