I don't really know where to start on this problem, but it's been bugging me for some time and I'd appreciate some direction. The problem states: Let X and X' be disjoint, convex sets in a vector space V . Prove that if E is a nonempty convex set, then $(X - E) \cap (X' + E) = \emptyset$. This problem looks very challenging, and I'm wondering if there is a good strategy for approaching it.

A: I would like to first give some suggestions on the general structure of the proof, then deal with the details. First, let's generalize a bit, so that we are able to deal with the case where E is not necessarily a convex set. In fact, we will prove something more general: Let X and X' be disjoint, convex sets, and $F \subseteq V$ a nonempty subset. Then, for all $x \in X$, we have $x - F \cap X' \subseteq \{0\}$. The proof of this theorem follows from the next lemma: Let X and X' be disjoint, convex sets, and $F \subseteq V$ a nonempty subset. Then, for all $x \in X$ and $y \in X'$, we have $x - F \cap X' \subseteq y - F \cap X'$. Let X and X' be disjoint, convex sets, and $x \in X$ and $y \in X'$. Then, by definition of the relative interior, there are $\alpha \in \mathbb{R}$ and $v \in V$ such that $x = \alpha v + y$. We note that, in the special case

Wednesday’s annual joint exercises have included practicing for missile strikes, something North Korea fears will lead to an invasion. As the Korean peninsula remained in a state of “escalation,” the North said, the U.S. “military should rectify their wrongdoing and withdraw their troops.” It was the North’s latest harsh language on the tense stand-off between the U.S. and North Korea. The leaders of North and South Korea will meet on Saturday in their first talks in two years. On Sunday, the U.S.

military said North Korea fired three short-range projectiles into the sea. Seoul said on Tuesday one missile was fired from the North's west coast, the same region where Pyongyang fired a similar missile over Japan's northern main island on July 4. South Korean President Moon Jae-in has said he would talk to North Korean officials on the sidelines of a two-day summit in Beijing next week with Chinese President Xi Jinping. "We hope they will be sensitive to the mood of the international community and abandon... nuclear weapons and live up to their obligations"
