Q: How to set a strong password for nginx I have a website on nginx as a hosted server. I am trying to setup a strong password for nginx so that even if someone hacks my IP or something. He has no way to access the nginx server and cannot access the database used by the site. Can anyone guide me with this? A: In theory, you should be able to prevent simple access to the server from compromising your database. If you're using a managed service, you will need to have an active security audit performed, but as long as you're vigilant, you should be safe. In reality, if your server is compromised, then it's gone. Hackers will try to leverage your data as a cache if they can, and if your data is worth it to them, they will generate a list of hashed passwords. To protect against this, you should educate your users to change their passwords, and you should use strong-password hashing algorithms. Q: Использование старого импорта в import Как я понял, когда мы используем не текущую версию Python, то можно использовать старый импорт, полученный например с прошлой версии языка. Сп
