Should you believe in higher gods? The concept of God is often seen as difficult to comprehend and it even evokes some suspicion. Is the fact that you call God by different names and attributes in the absence of him prove that he does not exist? Why are the spiritual people you meet ignoring Him if he indeed exists? If He exists, then why are you going against His will? Most people, after a little contemplation, are convinced that God must exist because their experience is limited to one side of Him. Like the first time you saw the inverted colored world, the very same experience awaits you after you believe in Him. If you believe in Him, you will begin to understand Him. One becomes the master of one's own existence only when it is tuned to the knowledge of the One. If you ever decide to believe in him, understand that the physical may take some time to change, but the consciousness cannot be denied to any other anything. An atheist admits that he cannot explain the existence of the entire universe with scientific means. There are many things that are beyond the scope of science. He will try to test the concept of God in his own way, but if God's existence is not proven to him, he will never accept it. To some extent, he will consider the existence of God as an answer to the questions in his own life and destiny. As a spiritual person, he will try to understand God as a whole and not only as one facet of God. As an atheist, he will try to exclude God from his life. Some are of the opinion that the existence of God is not subject to science because it is something that is intangible and beyond the scope of science. Science gives answers to questions based on the rules of evidence. Some questions are beyond the scope of evidence, because there is no way of proving that they do not exist. But some people like to use science to test the existence of God because they believe that science is the only method to know things in a practical way. Like any other material, God can also be reduced in size. And in the absence of a new scientific method, it will seem that God is smaller, but in reality, there is always something to be found somewhere and
